

FAIRMOUNT ART EXHIBITION

JUDGES 2017

GLENN JAMBOR

Glenn Jambor is a local artist and life-long resident of Geauga County. Glenn began painting in 1974 with his main focus in oil painting. His background includes participation in many shows nation-wide. His last two shows include shows at the Butler National Art Show and Lakeland Community College Art Show. He has been the recipient of numerous awards. Currently his work is focusing on ancient sites found in the "four corners" area of the United States. Glenn and his wife presently live in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

ALAN PETERS

A.D. Peters was born in Cleveland, Ohio, the youngest son of an inventor and electrical engineer; creativity was valued and encouraged in his family. After winning an art scholarship to further his education after high school, he attended The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts to be educated in classical materials and techniques. He then attained his BFA in painting with a minor in filmmaking at Kent State University. For 18 years Peters spearheaded an award winning art program for hospitalized veterans at the VA in Brecksville and Cleveland, Ohio. He also taught evening school at the Cleveland Institute of Art and Environmental Art at Hiram College. A. D. Peters, a graduate of Orange High School, will mark his 35th year as a painting instructor at the Orange Art Center in September of 2017. A.D. continues to paint at his studio farm nestled in the heart of Amish country in Northeast Ohio. Peters' work has been included in numerous exhibitions as well as solo shows in NYC, and has been collected both nationally and internationally including the Cleveland Museum of Art, the Progressive Collection, the Cleveland Clinic and the Hugo and Carla Brown Collection in The Hague.
